The Story of Tazewell County, Illinois

Tazewell County, early associated with such outstanding makers of Illinois -- and American -- history as Sieur de La Salle, Henri de Tonti, President Abraham Lincoln, the Reverend Peter Cartwright, Senator Stephen A. Douglas and Judge David Davis, is in the north central portion of Illinois and is today one of the two counties composing the great Peoria metropolitan area -- second largest such area in the Prairie State. The counties of Peoria and Tazewell, with an area of 1,292 square miles, had a combined population in 1950 of 250,512. And in 1947 (when the last such estimate was made), this vast, vital urban region on the Illinois River produced $280,670,000 worth of manufactured goods and articles.

One of the Prairie State's leading agricultural and coal mining counties, Tazewell has for its county seat the city of Pekin, with a corporate population of 21,858. Its "city zone" population, however, is estimated locally at 24,000. Among many prominent persons who today dwell in Tazewell County is United States Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen. He is regarded as a leading statesman of the day and one of America's foremost orators.

Early French Fort

Two miles below East Peoria, on the Illinois River, lies Fort Creve Coeur State Park, which marks the site of the first temporary white settlement is what is now Tazewell County. Although Father Marquette and Louis Jolliet were the first white men to view the soil of the future county, glimpsing it as they paddled by on Lake Peoria in the Illinois River in 1673, it remained for the later French explorers, Sieur de La Salle and Henri de Tonti, to become the first white men to establish a foothold -- however temporary -- in future Tazewell County.

During the earliest days of the French regime in mid-continental America, La Salle and his lieutenant, Tonti, built a rude palisaded fort at the place now occupied by Fort Creve Coeur State Park. Completing the fort in 1680. La Salle named it "Creve Coeur" (French for broken heart) after a similarly-named fort in the Netherlands. When the fort was finished, La Salle returned to Quebec, leaving Tonti in command with a handful of men.

While La Salle was in Quebec, he sent word to Tonti to investigate the possibilities of establishing a new fort on Starved Rock. It was while Tonti was absent on this mission that the men at Fort Creve Coeur, dissatisfied for a number of reasons, completely destroyed the fort and disappeared in the wilderness with all of the fort's powder and provisions. The fort was never re-built.

Regional Indians

Long before the first white men appeared in this part of the Illinois River country, the region was occupied, or hunted over, by the Illini tribe of Indians. At a later date came a sub-tribe called the Peorias. It was a branch of this tribe that Marquette and Jolliet found in the Lake Peoria area on their 1673 expedition. Some seventy-five habitations of bark were then occupied by the Peorias, Marquette reported. He found these Indians friendly and promised the protection of the French King to them against threats from the war-like Iroquois of the north. Then Marquette and Jolliet continued on their return journey to Quebec.

Part of Peoria County

Before Tazewell County was organized, it was part of Peoria County. At that early date, Peoria County, which was established in 1825, embraced all of the northern portion of Illinois, including the log settlement of Chicago. But of course most of this region was then a wilderness, with here and there a village or town. When the settlement at Peoria, started originally around Fort Clark there, was named county seat, it grew rapidly in population and soon was a booming river town. Most of its first citizens were from New England and other eastern sections.

First Settler

First settler of the region that afterwards became Tazewell County was Nathan Dillon, who came in 1823. After looking over the wilderness territory east of the Illinois River, Nathan Dillon settled on a tract of land in the Mackinaw River country, not far from the present village of Dillon.

Having installed his family in a reasonably comfortable log cabin home, Dillon immediately set to work turning the prairie sod and laying out a farm. In the following year, Dillon was joined by several of his brothers. The first white female child born in future Tazewell County was Nathan Dillon's daughter, Hannah, whose birth occurred on August 2, 1824.

It was in 1825 that Thomas Dillon, a brother of Nathan's, opened the first post office in what was to become Tazewell County, and it was in the following year that another brother, Absalom Dillon, started the first store in the county. In 1830, Absalom Dillon moved to Pekin and established the first store in that city.

Located southeast of Pekin, Dillon Township is named after Nathan Dillon. It is principally a farming community and has a population of 602. Some sixty inhabitants live in the village of Dillon.

Early Arrivals

Among early settlers of future Tazewell County was George Hittle, who came in 1824 and took up a claim in what later became known as Hittle's Grove. This place formed the nucleus of present-day Hittle Township, which in 1950 had a population of 729. The township contains Armington, a village of 314 population. About the same time that George Hittle arrived, a number of families settled on the east bank of the Illinois River and at a place later called Sand Prairie. Among these early families were the Croskeys, Townsends, Wilsons, Woodrows, Hawleys, Perkins, and Summers. At this period, too, William Holland arrived and was appointed an Indian agent for the region. He settled at or near present-day Washington city.

Beginnings of Pekin

Not only was Jonathan Sharp the first settler of what is now the city of Pekin, arriving in 1824, but he was the father of the first white child born in that city. The child was a son, Joseph, born March 10, 1827. Second to arrive at the site of the future city was Jonathan Sharp's father, Jacob. About this time, there also came Jesse Eggman, who built a house on what was then known as "Gravel Ridge."

By 1830, after Tazewell County was formed, the little settlement of Pekin contained, we are told, "eight actual settlers." But the community, although small, was showing signs of rapid development. Had not a steamboat stopped there in 1828? In fact, Pekin had enough influence by now to win designation as the county seat, which originally was at Mackinaw City.

Tazewell County Organized

Although Pekin, in 1827, was but a tiny settlement, there were enough farmers and others scattered throughout the countryside beyond it as to form a new county. And thus it was that Tazewell County was organized on January 31, 1827. Its first county commissioners' court was composed of James Latta, Benjamin Briggs and George Hittle.

Not having a county courthouse as yet, this first court met at the home of William Orendorff, and there, on April 10, 1827, appointed Mordecai Mobley as its first clerk. Several weeks later the commissioners' court met again and ordered that W. H. Hodge be appointed surveyor and that he lay out a county seat town to be called Mackinaw. In the following year (1828) Mackinaw became Tazewell's first county seat.

Littleton W. Tazewell

The new county on the Illinois River was named after Littleton Waller Tazewell, a leading American lawyer and political leader of the time. When the county was organized in 1827, Tazewell was serving in the United States senate, being chairman of that body's committee on foreign relations. In later years, Tazewell was elected governor of Virginia. During most of his public career he had been a strong opponent of President Jackson's policies. He died in 1860.

County Seat Dispute

When Mackinaw became the seat of Tazewell county, a typical early Midwestern "county seat war" followed. Soon enough, the booming river town of Pekin was demanding the removal of the county seat to its jurisdiction -- a demand that was met in 1831 when Pekin became county seat. In 1836, however, Tremont became county seat.

In the meantime, Pekin continued to grow in population and influence, became something of a river steamboat capital, and once more set up a demand for the return of the county seat. And once more it received the honor. It was again designated county seat in 1848 and has retained that title to date.

Black Hawk War

Thirteen men in a company of volunteers organized at Pekin were killed in the Black Hawk War of 1832. They fell at the Battle of Sycamore, on the Rock River in northern Illinois. Among their number were Major Perkins and Captain Adams, both of Pekin.

During the progress of the war, when it was thought bands of Indians were roaming the countryside, Pekin's first schoolhouse, the Snell School, was converted into a fort, added protection being provided by a stockade built around it.

It was called "Fort Doolittle." When the war was over, some merriment was caused in Pekin when it was realized that "Fort Doolittle," had it been besieged, would have been entirely cut off from a supply of water, due to the stockade construction.

Tremont Colony

It was in 1834 that the Tremont Colony, formed earlier in New York City, was established in Tazewell County. Dedicated to new and progressive methods of agriculture, members of the Tremont Colony, under the leadership of Josiah L. James and John H. Harris, acquired a large tract of prairie land in the central part of the county, divided it into farms, planted fruit trees as well as field crops, and introduced a new type of plow into the region.

In 1835 the town of Tremont was laid out by Josiah L. James, John H. Harris and William Sampson. A year later Tremont became Tazewell's third county seat, retaining this title until 1848. Today, the town of Tremont, on the New York Central System, has a population of 1,138. It is located mainly in Tremont Township, which has a total of 1,616 inhabitants.

Delavan Association

Another early agricultural colony in Tazewell County was that of the Delavan Association, a stock company organized at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1833. Named after Edward C. Delavan, a leading temperance advocate of the time, the Delavan Association completed its organization in 1836 and, that same year, Henry R. Green, its financial agent, entered more than 20,000 acres of land in Tazewell County, most of this land being located in what is now Delavan Township.

In 1837, Henry R. Green and a few others became the first settlers of the Delavan Colony. In 1841, Green and his associates laid out the town of Delavan, and the first edifice built in the new town was the Delavan House, afterwards incorporated into the Philips House. Today, the town of Delavan has a population of 1,248.

Blooded Stock

Credited with being the first to introduce blooded livestock into Tazewell County -- and into Central Illinois -- was Colonel Oakley. In 1840, after a trip to England, Colonel Oakley returned with one full-blooded Campbell stallion and a full-blooded Bertram mare. He also returned with five Berkshire hogs and a number of long-wooled Cotswold sheep. In 1843 Colonel Oakley made further importations of blooded livestock into Tazewell County.

Jones-Menard House

Afterwards to become an architectural landmark of the county, the Jones-Menard house was built at Tremont in 1845. It was erected by John Albert Jones, and, according to his daughter, Eugenia Jones Hunt, was patterned after a house her father had earlier owned in Washington, D.C. In 1866 the house was purchased by Peter Menard, son of Pierre Menard, first lieutenant-governor of Illinois. An architectural interpretation of the house is given by Rexford Newcomb in his Architecture of the Old Northwest Territory, published in 1950 by the University of Chicago Press.

Reverend Peter Cartwright

During the 1830's and 1840's, when Tazewell County was rapidly filling up with new land-seekers, a frequent visitor in the county was the Reverend Peter Cartwright, most celebrated of pioneer Midwestern preachers.

One of his earliest visits in the county was at the log cabin home of John Vancil, in what afterwards became Sand Prairie Township. Here, in 1823, the Reverend Mr. Cartwright preached a characteristic sermon to a small congregation of settlers. In 1846, the Reverend Mr. Cartwright ran for Congress in Illinois, but lost to his rival, Abraham Lincoln. As a circuit-riding preacher, he toured many counties of down-state Illinois.

Lawyer Lincoln in Tazewell

Another great American who was often in Tazewell County was Abraham Lincoln. As he rode the Eighth Judicial Circuit, and as Pekin was on that circuit, Lawyer Lincoln frequently appeared in the Tazewell County courthouse on legal matters. It was at Pekin that Lincoln, who later as President was to issue the historic Emancipation Proclamation, defended "Black Nance," the first slave to be freed by his efforts. And it was across the Illinois River from Pekin, in Peoria, that Lincoln delivered one of the important speeches of his career -- that of October 16, 1854, in which he went on record as opposed to the institution of slavery. It was his first public stand on the issue.

Lincoln's celebrated debating opponent, Senator Stephen A. Douglas, at one period served as state's attorney of Tazewell County. That was at a time when the Governor of Illinois, with the concurrence of the legislature, appointed state's attorneys as well as judges to serve on judicial circuits. These circuits included a group of counties, and Tazewell was in the Eighth such circuit.

Another who traveled that circuit with Lincoln and Douglas was Judge David Davis. He was afterwards to win a place in history as one of the small group of Illinois men who brought about the nomination of Lincoln to the Presidency.

Great Pekin Fire

On a March night in 1860, fire broke out in the Groundenburgh grocery store on the north side of Court Street, in Pekin. Although fire equipment was hastily summoned, the flames were soon out of control and were destroying other buildings in the downtown district of Pekin. On the following morning, when the conflagration ended, it was found that thirty of the city's principal business houses had been destroyed. Damage was estimated at more than $150,000. But in due time a new downtown district was under construction, with buildings now being made of brick instead of wood, and Pekin shortly resumed its normal life.

The Civil War

When President Lincoln sent out his first call for volunteers at the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, the men of Tazewell County quickly responded to the summons. They were men who remembered that President Lincoln had often appeared as a lawyer in their county seat town. An old county historical work says this: "Pekin gave as noble a response to the call for troops as any city of its size in the union. The city council, imbued with a noble and patriotic spirit, did its share towards assisting the men who assumed the hardships and perils of war, and in lending a helping hand to their families at home."

First Railroad

Of the greatest significance in the development of Tazewell County was the coming of the railroads in the late 1860's. The first road to be built in the county was the Peoria, Pekin & Jacksonville Railroad, a line that was started with a celebration in Pekin on July 4th, 1865. It was not completed, however, until several years afterwards, the delay having been caused by an upset in general economic conditions.

But by 1870 some five or six railroads were converging on Pekin. An unusually perceptive prophet of the time wrote: "With these half-dozen important railroads, to which may be added river navigation, the future prospects of Pekin as a commercial and manufacturing city, are unusually bright, and we need not fear the prestige already attained by our sister cities on either side, viz: -- Peoria and Bloomington."

The Caterpillar Tractor

Of all of the machines and articles manufactured in Tazewell County at the present time, the best known throughout America, and even throughout the world, is the caterpillar tractor. It is now universally used in industry and road building. In Tazewell County's second largest city, East Peoria, is located the huge plant the Caterpillar Tractor Company, one of the largest such plants in the world. More than 26,000 workers are employed in this great manufacturing establishment.

Fort Creve Coeur State Bank

A recent development in Tazewell County was the laying out, by the State of Illinois, of Fort Creve Coeur State Park. Located some two or three miles below East Peoria on State 29, and overlooking the Illinois River, this fourteen-acre park is situated on the approximate site of Fort Creve Coeur, a defense post built by the French explorer, Sieur de La Salle, in 1680. It was named after a fort in the Netherlands captured by the French during the reign of Louis XIV. In the park today stands a granite monument marking the probable site of La Salle's early fort.

"Who's Who" in Tazewell County

In the latest edition of that standard reference work, Who's Who in America, may be found the names of four Tazewell County men who have won national reputations in their respective fields of endeavor. They are Senator Everett McK. Dirksen, John A. Moritz, W. J. McBrian and Gail E. Spain.

A native of Pekin, where he was born in 1896, Senator Dirksen, after studying at the University of Minnesota and after Army service in the first World War, entered politics. From 1927 to 1931 he served as commissioner of finance for the city of Pekin. A member of the Republican party, he was elected senator for Illinois in 1950. His home is in Pekin.

Both W. J. McBrian and Gail E. Spain are vice-presidents of the Caterpillar Tractor Company in East Peoria. The former joined the company in 1928. In addition to his work with the company, McBrian is a leader in affairs of the National Manufacturers' Association and the National Small Business Men's Association.

Gail E. Spain joined the Caterpillar Tractor Company in 1929, and became a vice-president in 1942. Since then, he has served on various government commissions. At present he is a member of the executive committee of the Farm Equipment Institute and director of the manufacturers' division of the American Road Builders' Association.

Another native of Pekin is John A. Moritz. He joined the Mid-States Steel & Wire Company in 1928 and became its vice-president in 1934. He is also superintendent of the wire mills of the Keystone Steel & Wire Company. Best known of his several inventions is the Moritz fence clip. Moritz has been president of the American Wire Association since 1952.

Tazewell County Today

According to the 1950 census (the last taken), Tazewell County has a total population of 76,165 -- an increase of 30.5 per cent over the 1940 population. It ranks 327th, so far as population is concerned, in the list of 3,103 counties in the United States. Its land area is 653 square miles, and within this area live an average of 117 inhabitants per square mile.

As for their places of residence, 49,278 citizens are classified as urban; as dwellers in cities and towns. Identified as rural non-farm residents, most of whom might be called suburbanites, are 18,564 individuals. The rural farm population - farm dwellers - is given at 8323.

Regarding the ages of Tazewell County inhabitants, there are 9,088 under five years of age, and 5,007 over sixty-five. By a process of deduction, the average (median) age of the county's population is found to be 28.7 years. Incidentally, there are 47,448 potential voters in the county.

During 1949, a total of 1,945 births occurred in the county, and a total of 589 deaths. Among the deaths were 41 infants. Another item in the vital statistics category is that 630 marriages took place in the county in 1949.

Of the 20,670 families (two or more members) living in the county, it was found that the average 1949 income of these families is $3,510, and that 22.3 per cent have an income of $5,000 or more while 14.5 per cent have an income of less than $2,000.

In the field of education, there are 13,040 youngsters in the county between the ages of 7 and 17. Of this total 98.2 per cent are attending primary school (8,765 between the ages of 7 and 13). In the group between 14 and 17 years (high school age) old, 85.8 per cent are in attendance at high schools. Among those in the county 25 years old and over, the average number of school years completed is 9. In this same group, 5.4 per cent completed less than 5 years of schooling, while 33.6 per cent went to high school or college. The institutional population of the county - inmates of homes for delinquents, mental hospitals etc. - was 85 in 1950.

The potential labor force of the county -- persons 14 years old and over -- is 55,204. Of this number, 84.7 per cent are males and 25.3 per cent are females. Again, of this number, 29,492 are employed. There are 12,390 employed in manufacturing, or 42 per cent, and 2,764 in agriculture, or 9.4 per cent. Only 141 are engaged in mining.

Under the heading of housing, Tazewell County had 16,783 dwelling units in 1940 and in 1950 it has 23,740. The average number of rooms per unit is 4.6. Also, 82.2 per cent of all homes in the county are one-dwelling units, again, 58.7 per cent have hot running water and private toilet and bath, and are not considered dilapidated. There are only 1.9 per cent vacant, or available for occupancy.

Of the county's total of 22,620 inhabited dwelling units, in which live an average of 3 persons, 69.4 per cent are owner-occupied. A little over 62 per cent of these have central heating, 87.4 per cent have mechanical refrigerators, and 97.5 per cent have radios. Aside from farm houses, the average value of one-dwelling unit habitations in the county is $7,086.00. In tenant-occupied units, the average gross rental is $41.30 per month.

In 1948, when the last business census was taken, Tazewell County had a total of 726 retail stores, and the retail sales for that year amounted to $51,235,000. Practically all of the stores then were unincorporated businesses conducted by active proprietors. These stores employed 2,485 workers. Food stores, of which there were 182, accounted for the largest item in the total sales figure -- $13,940,000. The next highest item $6,025,000, was accounted for by eating and drinking establishments, of which there were 196.

There were 70 wholesale houses in the county in 1948, and the sales of these houses that year amounted to $39,119,000. More than 500 employees worked in the wholesale houses of the county.

In the field of manufacturing, when the last census was taken in 1947, the county had 59 factories which employed more than 25,000 workers and which produced materials and goods valued at $122,614,000. Salaries paid out that year amounted to $72,303,000.

On the basis of the 1950 census, there are 2,128 farms in Tazewell County, of which 1,846 are commercial farms. A total of 372,000 acres are under cultivation in the county. Of the full number of farms, 42.5 per cent are operated by tenants. The average value of land and buildings per farm in the county is $40,628. The value of farm products sold in 1949, including livestock as well as crops, was $18,511,000. Farm expenditures in the county for 1949 amounted to $1,684,000 for livestock and poultry feed, and $964,000 for hired labor.

Pekin Today

A leading industrial and agricultural center and part of the great Peoria urban zone, the city of Pekin, county seat of Tazewell, has a population of 21,858. Its own "city zone" population, however, is estimated locally at 24,000, a figure which includes the villages of Crevecoeur and North Pekin.

Pekin is served by such railroads as the Chicago & Illinois Midland (freight); the New York Central (freight-passengers); the Santa Fe (freight-passengers); the Illinois Central (Freight); The Chicago &

North Western (freight); the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio (freight); and the Peoria & Pekin Union (freight). It is also served by the Kriegsman and Mayflower motor freight lines. The Greyhound Line is a motor carrier for passengers.

Total resources of the two principal banks in Pekin amount to $25,413,941.68. The total deposits of these banks is given as $23,839,238.41. Savings bank deposits amount to $4,929,406.18.

In the field of industry, food manufacturing or processing is in the lead, employing 2,200 workers at an average weekly wage of $60. Largest plant in this category is the Corn Products Refining Company, which employs 1,300 workers. The next largest plant in the city zone is the American Distilling Company, which employs 800 workers. In another category is the Commonwealth Edison Company plant, which employs 400 workers. There are two coal mines in the area.

There are 255 retail stores in Pekin which employ 1,206 workers. In 1948 the sales of these stores amounted to $22,570,000, but a 1954 estimate by business survey agencies places this figure at $27,750,000. In 1948 the payroll of all of the city's retail employees amounted to $2,133,000.

Largest group in the retail field are food stores, of which there are 72 and which in 1948 grossed a total of $6,173,000 in sales. In addition to local establishments, Pekin contains branches of such national chain food stores as Kroger, A & P and Piggly Wiggly. The city's principal department and variety stores as Schipper & Block, J. C. Penny Company, N. Reuling Company, Carps, Woolworth, S. S. Kresge and McLellan's. The only newspaper in the city is the Pekin Times, with a circulation of 16,743.

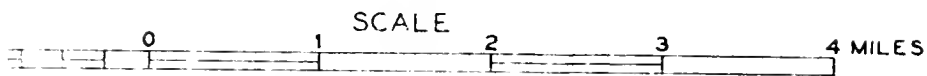

CITY of PEKIN

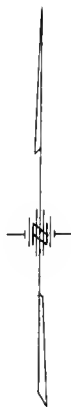

Largest city of Tazewell County, and that county's seat, is Pekin, with a corporate population of 21,858. As the story of Pekin is mainly the story of Tazewell County, a detailed description of the city will be found in the opening narrative of this book. First settled in 1824 by Jonathan Sharp, Pekin was incorporated as a city on August 20, 1849, its population then being 1,500.

Some twenty years later (1870), the following description of Pekin was penned by a contemporary writer: "Beautifully situated on the east bank of the Illinois River, on an elevated plain two miles wide before reaching the picturesque scenery of the east bluff, Pekin is on a location that challenges comparison with any in the west. On the west side it is bounded by the river, crowded during the greater portion of the year with steam packets, tow-boats, steam propellers, canal boats, barges and other water craft, while the beautiful lake to the northward is made alive on summer evenings with pleasure boats of every description."

BOYNTON

In the south portion of the county lies the small village of Boynton, only community in Boynton Township. It is served by the post office at nearby Delavan. Boynton Township has a population of 450. It was organized in 1854 and an old historical work says that it "derived its name from an individual in the East, a personal friend of one of the pioneer settlers." Recorded as the first settler of the township is Joseph Grout, who came in 1839.

CITY of EAST PEORIA

Second largest city in Tazewell County is East Peoria, with a population of 8,698. This is an increase of 27.8 per cent over the 1940 population. Here is located the giant Caterpillar Tractor Company plant, one of the largest of its kind in the world. More than 26,000 workers are employed in this great establishment.

An outstanding attraction in East Peoria is Fondulac Park, laid out on a hilltop that affords an unusual view of the Illinois River and the Peoria metropolitan zone.

The city is located in Fondulac Township, which has a total population of 11,369. After the city was founded, following the arrival of the first railroads in the county, it absorbed two pioneer villages of the township, Fondulac, laid out in 1855, and Blue Town, platted in 1864. Considered the first settler of the township was William Planchard who came in the early 1820's. The township is bordered on the west by Lake Peoria.

ROBEIN

On U. S. 24, northeast of the city of East Peoria, lies a small village called Robein. Near it, in Washington Township, is Sunnyland, another small village.

MORTON

Northeast of Pekin, in a fertile farming area, lies the village of Morton, one of the county's older communities. It has a population of 3,693 -- an increase of 64.8 per cent over its 1940 population. The village is on the Santa Fe, Illinois Terminal and Pennsylvania railroads. In addition to other establishments, it has a post office and bank.

Morton was platted in 1850 by James Campbell. It is the principal community of Morton Township, which today has a total population of 4,624. First settler of the township is believed to have been a man named Soward, who came in 1826 or 1827. Among early arrivals were John M. Roberts and his four sons.

GREEN VALLEY

South of Pekin, on State 29, lies the incorporated village of Green Valley, with a population of 503. The village was platted in 1872 by Samuel Schureman. Through it run the Illinois Terminal, the Chicago & North Western and the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio railroads.

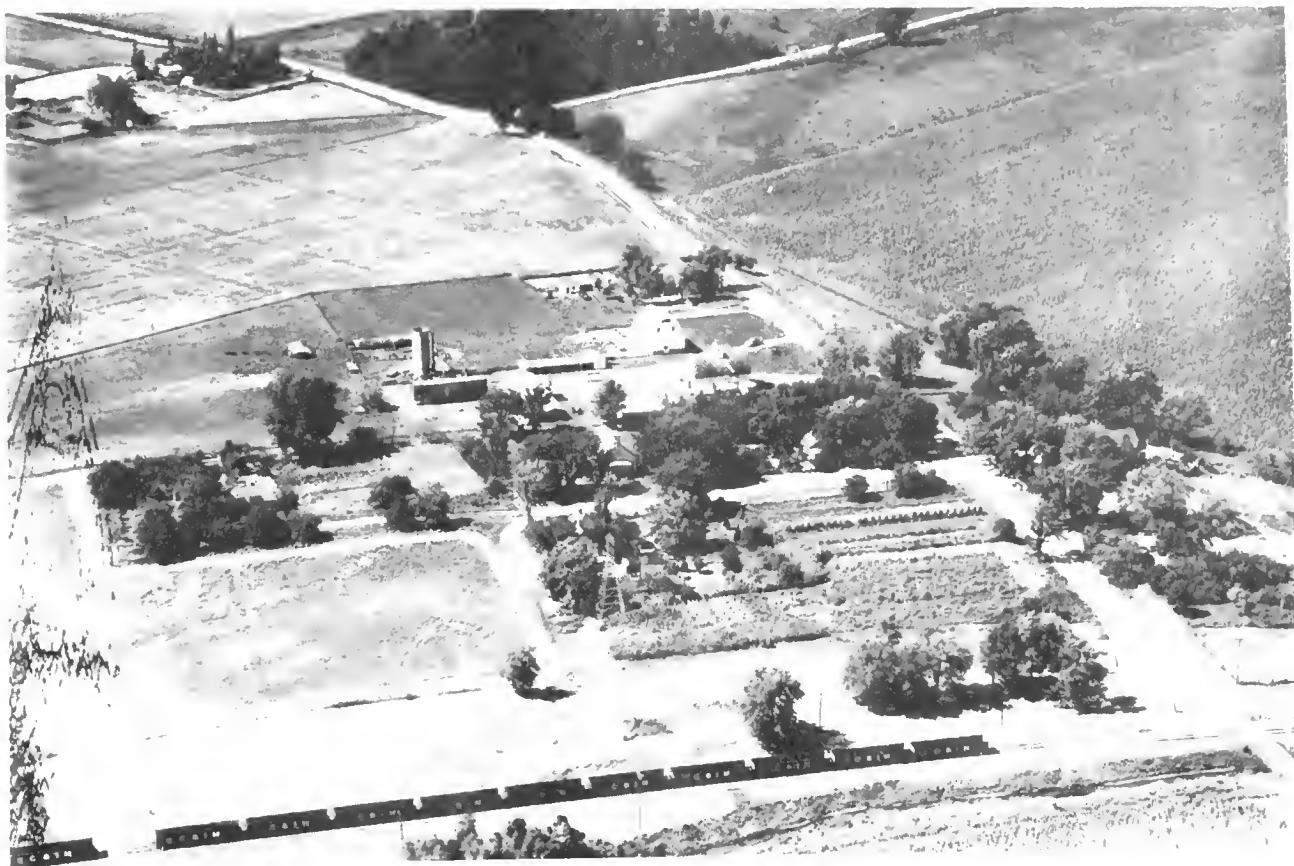

Green Valley is the only community in Sand Prairie Township, which has a total population of 996. First settler of the township was Major Isaac Perkins, who built a log cabin here sometime in the early 1820's. A later arrival was John Vancil, in whose cabin home the celebrated preacher, Reverend Peter Cartwright, delivered one of his first sermons in Tazewell County.

Another early settler was Joseph Offut, who built a log cabin on the border of Spring Lake in the southeswt corner of the township.

TREMONT

One of Tazewell County's oldest communities and its third county seat, the village of Tremont, located southeast of Pekin, today has a population of 1,138. The village was platted in 1835 by John H. Harris, Josiah L. James and other leading members of the Tremont Colony, a group devoted to new agricultural methods.

Tremont was designated the county seat of Tazewell in 1836, and retained that title until 1848, at which time Pekin became county seat. Today, it is the only community in Tremont Township, which has a population of 1,616. First settler of the township is believed to have been James Chapman, who arrived several years before the coming of the Tremont Colony.

WASHINGTON

In the northern part of the county lies Washington city, with a population of 4,285 -- an increase of 74.5 per cent over its 1940 population. One of the oldest communities in the county, Washington is designated one of the several "urban places" of Tazewell County in the U.S. Census report for 1950. The city is located on three railroads -- the Santa Fe, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio and the Peoria & Western.

Washington city is the principal community of Washington Township, which has a total population of 7,351. The township was first settled by William Holland, who established a farm here and later became a blacksmith and gunsmith. He was elected the township's first justice of the peace. He platted the village of Washington in 1834.

SUNNYLAND

Another community in Washington Township is Sunnyland, with a population of 880. It is served by the post office at nearby Washington city. Sunnyland is on U.S. 24.

BEVERLY MANOR

Beverly Manor, another community in Washington Township, is also on U. S. 24. It is located between Sunnyland and Washington city.

Knots and Miles

Source: United States Coast and Geodetic Survey

The U. S. Statute Mile is 5,280 feet in length. On the Continent most of the old miles, which varied in length from about 3,300 feet to over 36,000 feet, have been replaced, officially at least, by the kilometer, which equals 0.6214 statute mile or 3,280.8 feet.

The Nautical, Geographic, or Sea Mile at any place is considered, for purposes of navigation, to be equal to the length of one minute of latitude at that place.

The U. S. Nautical Mile is 6,080.20 feet in length and equal to one-sixtieth of a degree of a great circle of a sphere whose surface is equal in area to the area of the surface of the earth (Clarke's spheroid of 1866).

The Knot is a measure of speed; a speed of one knot being a speed of one nautical mile an hour.

A Nautical Mile — 1.1516 statute miles; a Fathom — 6 feet; a Cable — 100 fathoms or 600 feet or approximately 0.1 nautical mile.

To convert statute miles into nautical miles, multiply statute miles by 0.8684; to convert nautical miles into statute miles, multiply nautical miles by 1.1516, or roughly $1\frac{1}{7}$.

United States Air Forces and the Navy use the knot as the standard aeronautical unit of speed and the nautical mile as the corresponding unit of distance.
